The researcher aimed to figure out the reasons and point of view of the respondents on why they risked knowing that there are a lot of protocols and restrictions that will affect the business to operate and to prove that even though there is a pandemic, there is still an opportunity to start a new business. The research is entitled New Food Service Business Ventures during the COVID-19 Pandemic In some Barangays in Silang, Cavite: An Assessment because the researchers will determine why they risk amid of COVID-19 Pandemic, and this is to measure and acknowledge their sides. As far as the researchers know, people are affected in many ways, but some people find the courage to continually find motivation to open new businesses and take risks.

is second only to those who experience prejudice against companies here in the country. With data gathered by the team who underwent the study, there is evidence that gender perceptions in the Philippines are influenced by various factors such as culture, religion, common stereotypes, and the environment in general. Researchers discovered that the Philippine tourism industry's perceptions towards genders are improving as they gradually change to an inclusive and equal outlook of the genders who can serve the industry for the present and near future.
